Step 14:- Click on “Next” and then click on “Create a Team”

Hello Rohit, welcome to Fusion 360!

In Fusion 360, everything happens inside a team. A team is a collaborative environment where you can store design data and work on your own or with collaborators.

Whether you are the only member of your team or collaborating, you are always in control of your data and can define who can access it.

Hello Rohit, welcome to Fusion 360!

Your email address, autodesk.annauniversity@gmail.com, belongs to a public or educational organization. With this type of address, you can create a team.

+ Create a Team

You will be the team administrator and control all data. You can always invite others to the team to collaborate.

If you want to join a corporate team, sign in with your corporate email address or contact your administrator.

+ Join Existing Team

You must be signed in with a corporate email address to join teams.

Step 15:- Type your own “Team name” and click “Next

Hello Rohit, welcome to Fusion 360!

Enter a name for your team. This is the name that people will see when you invite them to the team. You will be the first member of the team, and no one will be able to see your data until they join.

Give your team name _____

Next

Hello Rohit, welcome to Fusion 360!

Now it's time to create your team, "Anna University". Because you're using a public or educational email address (autodesk.annauniversity@gmail.com), your team will only be visible to people you invite to it. In other words, people will not be able to find your team in lists or join it without an invitation. This is done to protect your data.

If you would prefer to create a team that is discoverable and automatically joinable by colleagues, sign in to Fusion 360 using a corporate email address. This is helpful for organizations who want their employees to join existing teams instead of creating their own. You can still make this type of team private if you prefer.

Do not allow discovery

Do not allow other people from gmail.com to discover your team. You will need to invite each team member manually.

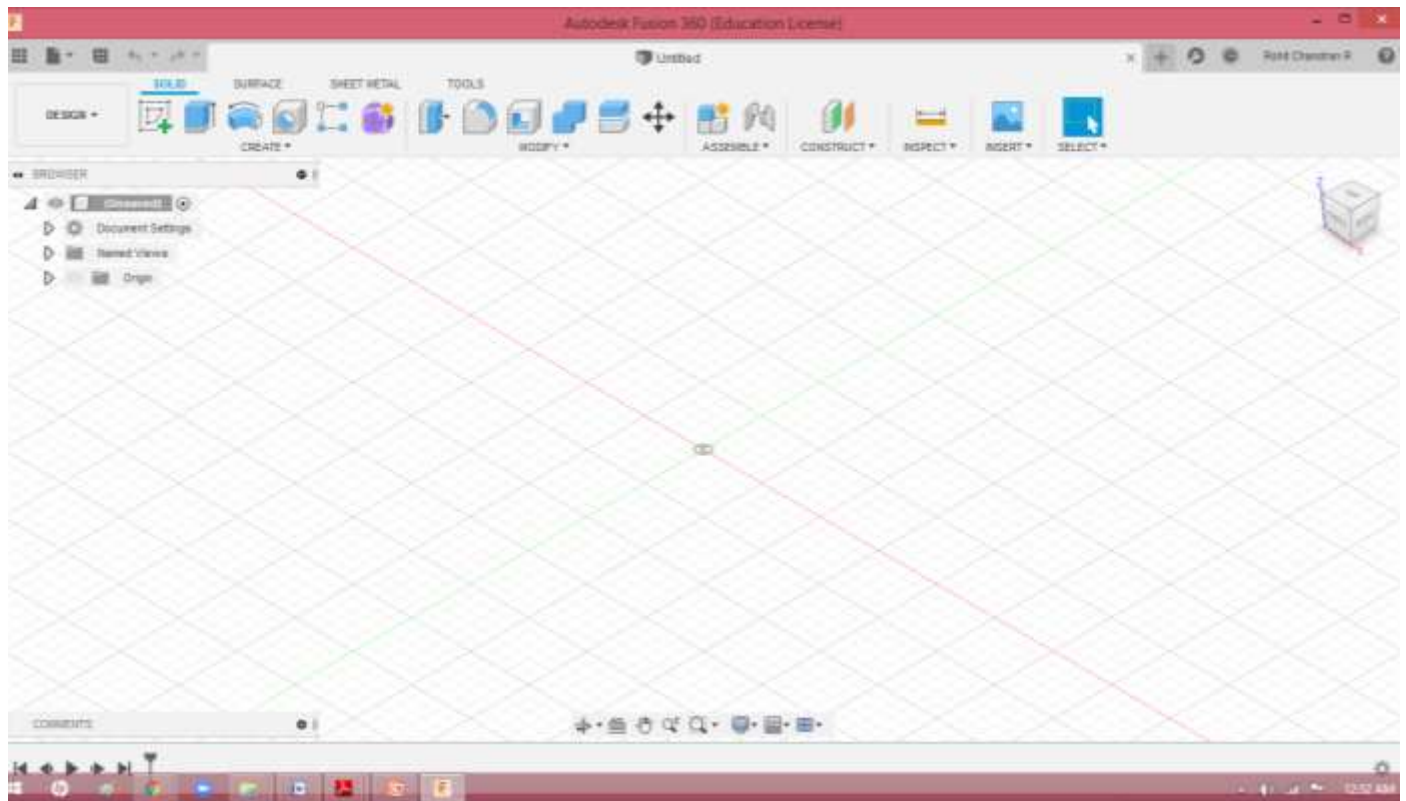

Allow discovery and automatic join

Make your team discoverable and allow people from gmail.com to join automatically.
